Small Attendance at Meeting of Borough Council Last Night

Numerous Reports Heard and Many Business Matters Discussed By Those Who Were Present

WILL MOUNT CANNON IN WITMER PARK

Seven of the twelve members were present at last night's meeting of the Borough Council at the borough building. President James F. Pietcher of the First Ward presided.

There was very little done except the transacting of the routine business of council, which consisted largely of reports from the different borough officials.

Street Commissioner Graham reported on the general borough work being done, and his report showed a great deal of activity on the part of the street forces getting the streets alleys and sewers in shape for winter.

Engineer Hess reported on matters concerning sidewalk grades in different parts of the borough and stated that curbs were being built over Orr's run near Walther's livery stable.

He also reported the Daisy street having been finished and the street opened, and that the laying of brick had been started on Nichols street and that concrete base on said street would be completed by Turnpike avenue by Saturday night, weather permitting. He also stated that the curves at Turnpike avenue would be made of longer radius in order to better accommodate the traffic at this point, and thus relieve a dangerous situation.

Secretary McCullough of the board of health reported a most satisfactory condition of public health, his report stating that at the present time there were only three premises in the borough under quarantine, one for the whooping cough and two diphtheria, and that during the first sixteen of the last thirty days there was not a single case of contagious disease in the borough.

W. H. Patterson, Esq., president of the Shade Tree commission, was present and informed council that when the present borough code was passed by the last legislature that the law under which the Shade Tree commission was appointed and was acting had been repealed and if council wished to continue the commission it would be necessary to pass a resolution covering same as provided for in the code and the burgess would then have to make new appointments. The matter was referred to the borough solicitor for investigation and to report form of resolution.

Solicitor Urey reported that progress toward purchase of the water works was being retarded by failure of the superintendent to produce map of the plant which was necessary to his application to the Public Service Commission.

The borough engineer was directed to make plan and specifications for mounting the two cannon presented to the borough by the late Hon. James Kerr some years ago, it being the intention of the school board to have same placed at the edge of Wit-

mer park near the High School lot line.

That never ending garbage incinerator proposition was up again and got itself almost talked to death once more. It was the opinion of the majority of council that the incinerator should be built on the site of the present dump, that being the only location available. There seemed to be a difference of opinion as to what constituted garbage and what was rubbish and the nature of plant needed here and Chairman Pietcher appointed Messrs Wilson and Hagerly, Borough Solicitor Urey and Borough Engineer Hess a special committee to go into the matter and report some form of garbage disposal for Clearfield at the next meeting of council.

Mr. Hagerly, of finance committee reported the issuing on October 8th of an additional $5,000 worth of 1916 improvement bonds.

Generals Listen to Pleadings of Girl

Allow "Rover" Favorite Dog to be Sent to Soldier Brother

Washington, October 19. —Ponderous governmental machinery stood still today while a thirteen year old girl stood before a group of dignified generals and tearfully pleaded for the life of a little yellow dog.

She was Esther Smiley of Maryland, sister of Private Peter Smiley, a recruit in the United States Marine Corps, and the dog she held in her arms had been Peter's playmate since youth.

"Rover will surely die of grief unless you send him on to my brother," the little girl sobbed.

And wonder of wonders, the dignified generals understood the little girl's plea, and acting instantly to percolate the embalming of Rover in the red tape of officialdom gave the necessary instructions, and within an hour the faithful playmate of Private Peter Smiley was created up ready for shipment to the Marine Corps recruit depot, Port Royal, S. C., where Peter is in training for the land and sea duties of marine.

A Sight London Never Saw Before

This photograph of soldiers whose legs were shot off in the war was taken in London. In time they will be given mechanical legs and will abandon their crutches. The British surgeons have followed the general policy of cutting off limbs which seemed to them could not be saved. In France a much different method has been pursued. There every effort has been made to preserve limbs of wounded soldiers.

OFFICER SWEARS LIVES OF DOGS INTO GRAVE

Constable From Up-County is Paid for Killing Twenty-one Dogs But Only Got One

GIVEN CHANCE TO MAKE GOOD

Under an Act of Assembly passed at the last session of the legislature the constables of the commonwealth were designated as the official executioners of every dog within the confines of their bailiwick upon which no taxes had been paid for the coming year. The purpose of the act was to rid the state of the hundreds of worthless curs running at large. The law was put through by the farmers and state game commission to get away from the damage to sheep and game perpetrated by these vagabond canines.

The law has been working out quite satisfactorily in Clearfield county and many dogs have been put to death in the different districts. The constable is entitled under the law to receive one dollar a head for each dog killed and it has been a source of considerable revenue to a number of active officials. However, the county commissioners, who pay the bills, conceived the idea that they were being called upon to pay for more dogs than were actually being killed and when several bills with an especially large number of dog funerals listed were received the other day they decided to make an investigation of several of the bills, after paying them on the oath of the constable presenting same.

Accordingly District Attorney Welch was taken in on the play and the matter turned over to County Detective Jeffries. He was given the bill of a Constable from the upper end of the county which stated that during last month twenty-one dogs had been killed and for which the constable had been paid twenty-one good hard dollars.

Jeffries went promptly to work and after going over the list and interviewing the people listed by the constable as the owners of the dogs killed he found that instead of there having been twenty-one dogs slaughtered at one dollar per head there had really been but one dog killed for which the constable had been paid twenty-one dollars.

The constable was given an opportunity to call and refund the money to the commissioners, which he will do tomorrow, and if further procedure after that time will be up to the commissioners and their attorney. The county detective is engaged in several other cases and the trouble may come to the constable's attention before the affair is closed up.

92 Years Average Age Of County Family

Dressler Family of Union Township Has a Wonderful Record

Yesterday dispatches to a Philadelphia paper refer to the remarkable fact that a Franklin county lady is today celebrating her ninety-seventh birthday anniversary and that there are of her brothers and sisters six whose average age is 88 years.

Clearfield county can produce a record that is just a trifle better. There was raised in the Union township woods the well known Dressler family.

"Uncle Levi Dressler," as he is familiarly known, is now 97 years of age and he is the youngest survivor of the family. The eldest of the family, John Dressler, who died in Kansas is 98. Between these two are three sisters, Elizabeth, Sarah, and Georgeanna, all of whom are now in the county of Iowa.

JEFFRIES GETS ELOPERS AFTER LONG CHASE

Eloping Curwensville Woman, Who Took Child With Her, Is Now in Jail

WILL STICK TO AFFINITY

County Detective Hugh Jeffries arrived in town last evening on the 10.15 Pennsylvania train having in charge Emilio Tolomei, the young Curwensville Italian who eloped last week with Mrs. Edward Durandetto. Mrs. Durandetto and her two-year-old baby were also in the party and the guilty pair are now behind the bars at Fort McKelvey. They will be called upon Monday morning to face Judge Bell and the angry frowns of the injured husband, whom it is said is willing to let Tolomei have the woman providing they turn his child over to him.

The county detective was given the case four days after the elopers left Curwensville. He picked up their trail at Tyrone and followed them from there to Tamqua, and from thence to Bloomsburg, Columbia county, where he arrested Tolomei yesterday morning just after he had secured a job in a brick yard, had rented a house and was preparing to go to housekeeping.

Tolomei did not know what he was arrested for and readily took the detective to the house where his mammoth was stopping. Leaving the gray Italian (who is as homely as a mud fence) outside in the custody of an officer, Mr. Jeffries went into the house and arrested the woman. She denied being the party wanted and said she had been married at Clearfield October 10th. When confronted with her lover she acknowledged the man.

Mrs. Durandetto is a prepossessing woman and says she will stick to her affinity regardless of what her lawful husband has to say in the matter.

WHAT NOTHING IS

If any man thinks that he can conceive well enough how there should be nothing, I will e gaze that what he means by nothing is as much something as anything that he ever thought of in his life, and I believe that if he knew what nothing was it would be intuitively, evident to him that it could not be. German Submarine Reported Sunk Thoaght To Be the Raider U-53

Norfolk Va., Oct. 19.—(By United Press)—A German submarine possibly the U-53 has been sunk off Nantucket, a message according to the British vessel North Pacific claims to have received. The North Pacific is taking on coal bunkers here today. Although it arrived Monday night from Seattle, the North Pacific reported only today that it had received the message from a British cruiser. The message was received by wireless and read "German submarine sunk off Nantucket." Officers of the North Pacific verified the statement given out by the United Press a few days ago that the insurance rates on Trans Atlantic shipping had been lowered and that Lloyd's had received some inside in-

Farmont, W. Va., Oct. 19.—(By United Press)—Flash—A terrible mine disaster has occurred at Barackville, three miles from here. Early reports are that 100 are entombed.

Miners employed by the Jamison Coal Mining company at Barackville three miles from here were entrapped by an explosion of fire damp at one o'clock this afternoon and several lives have been lost. After the explosion officials of the company denied the statement that more than 100 men were entombed. The mine they said had not been operating with its normal force since Tuesday and as it was at the end of the dinner hour but four had returned to their work in the mines. Telephone calls from Barackville stated that practically a score of lives had been lost.

Officials connected with the Mine Rescue car that is now in this vicinity advise us that the explosion at the Jamison Colliery was no doubt caused by an explosive gas known in the parlance of the chemist as C H 4 or carburetted hydrogen which when mixed with air in the proportion of 1 of gas to 9.18 of air is most explosive. The explosion is followed with black damp or C O 2 which gas simply smothers a man due to an entire lack of oxygen. From this smothering a man can be resuscitated either by manual work or pulmotor. In case the explosion of C H 4 is not complete and only partly explodes the most deadly gas forms. This gas is known as Carbon Monoxide or C O and is an active poison which if breathed for any length of time is fatal. One half of one per cent of this poison is fatal.

The mine that exploded is Jamison No. 7 and is one of the seven mines owned by the Jamison Company of Greensburg. While officials admit that at least a score have been killed it is safe to predict that the total number who will smother from the suffocating gases and who will be killed outright will be much greater. At this time however it cannot be learned how many of those still in the mine are still alive.

This explosion will no doubt be a subject for discussion at the First Aid meet at the Dimeling tonight and it will be very interesting to everybody.

RAINY DAYS.

A rainy day is not the pleasantest occasion in the world yet they play their part in the complex machinations of this terrestrial globe and have a great effect on the inhabitants thereof. From the chronic rheumatic who tells you the day after the rain that he knew it was coming three days before by the feel of his bones, to the frog that persists in keeping you awake at night in the springtime by his gurgling "jug o' rum," all manner of living things on terra firma are affected. Just at this time rain is sorely needed to keep the earth from cracking. There is absolutely no water in the ground and the farmer has been praying for it for weeks. There is a scarcity of water in several towns and to these the rain will be a Godsend.

Business men usually frown on a rainy day, forgetting that a rainy day has both an immediate and future effect on business and manufacturing. A woman scanning an advertisement in the paper today or thinking of a new suit, a new coat or dress, will be all the more anxious to buy one from the fact that she cannot get out to do it today on account of the rain. It is a well known fact that we most want that which is just a little out of reach. Then again, a rainy day opens up rain coat sales, over coats, rubbers and a myriad of other articles. 76,000 people are engaged in the making of umbrellas in the U. S. What would they do without rainy days? What ruins your clothes more than a rainy day? Doesn't this make it necessary to buy? The business man should welcome a rainy day. It creates industry, manufacturing and buying.

Don't the kiddies like rain? Sure they do. Once in a while one may get wet feet and contract pneumonia but where one suffers, think of the thousands of dirty little urchins out on the dirt roads in their bare feet happy in the sensation of letting the nice, smeary mud ooze up between their toes. Those were the days when rain was welcome and we enjoyed life unfettered by conventions.

When it rains we look gloomy, especially if it happens to be Dollar Day, but after a rain we greet everybody with a smile and a cheery "Nice day after the rain." Let the rain come. Be thankful for it. It is one of God's blessings.

HOSPITALITY AS AN IDEAL.

Perhaps the greatest charm of the southern states to the traveler is hospitality. Nobody ever turns away from a southern homestead hungry and tired. Southern doors are always open and so are southern hearts.

In the rush of our busy life up in the North we are inclined to forget hospitality now and then. So much must be accomplished in such a short time that there is little opportunity for entertaining friends in the average person's life.

My friend Ethel, of whom I speak so very often, was born in Virginia. Of course all my friends are glad to see me and make me at home, but at Ethel's little homestead there is, somehow or other, that underlying strain of welcome. When you are there your thoughts must fly to the old Southern mansions where civility was always in full swing and where the traveler was sure of refreshment and shelter.

After all, dear girls, what is the use of having a lovely little home if we can not share it with others occasionally?

A home is a woman's kingdom and if she lacks hospitality we are unable to speak well of the way in which she reigns over it.

Even though the wealthy entertain lavishly with their week ends, dinners, parties, dances and all, we are seldom able to think of them as really hospitable people. The size and quality of the house has absolutely nothing to do with the matter. Hospitality is a habit to do with the matter. Hospitality is a habit.

may be found in the humblest of humble homes. In fact it is more generally discovered at the less wealthy hearthstone.

If I desire to be considered hospitable, and now that I have my own little home I can be made possible. Why can't we, one and all, join hands across the different states and make all women, North and South, renowned for their hospitality?

NEGRO MURDERER TO HANG

Gainesville, Fla., Oct. 19.—Preparations have been completed by the county sheriff for the execution of the negro murderer, Willie Turner, who took place at an early hour tomorrow morning. The crime for which Turner is to pay the death penalty was the murder of E. C. Avery, a veteran turfman, on the Alachua county fair grounds here last November. After committing the crime the negro buried the body of his victim in a stall.

STORMS APPROACHING NORTH EAST

Pitts., Wash., Oct. 19.—The weather bureau posted storm notices today that storms were approaching from the Great Lakes and along the Atlantic coast. The storm center is now able to think of them as really hospitable people. The size and quality of the house has absolutely nothing to do with the matter. Hospitality is a habit to do with the matter. Hospitality is a habit.

Historic Yale University Celebrates Her Two Hundredth Anniversary

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 19.—Two hundred years! All that the rounding out of two centuries of progress and development, of building and expansion, of goals gained and ambitions realized, of work performed and projects completed, of ideals attained and problems solved, of things done means to a great educational institution is what Yale University is to celebrate at the end of this week.

The celebration is to take place Saturday, two centuries to a day from the time that the little group of divines, who formed the Yale faculty, cranning Greek and Latin roots into a dozen youthful heads, decided that they could make a better job of it in New Haven than they had made in Saybrook, where the infant college had been located since its foundation fifteen years before. They decided to move to New Haven and, in commemoration of the removal, the celebration is to be held. It was an event that affected both Yale and New Haven the most profoundly in character, ideals and progress of anything in the entire history of both the city and the college.

The principal feature of the celebration is to be a mammoth pageant depicting historical scenes connected with the university. The pageant is to be given in the great Yale "bowls". The completed plans show that it will be the largest in number of actors ever gathered in the history of the drama in any play or pageant. Six thousand actors will be on the stage at the same time.

The great drama will start with a prelude showing the wedding procession of Margaret, grandmother of John Yale, who received her dowry, the reversion of Playen Yale. From this inheritance two centuries later his descendant, Elihu Yale, made the name forever famous by bestowing it on a small "collegiate school" in Connecticut.

Then will come a series of historical scenes, including the Governor's Pool Guard, under Benedict Arnold, demanding the keys of the powder house in 1775, the invasion of New Haven by British troops in 1779, the martyrdom of Nathn Hale, the visit of George Washington to New Haven, all grouped under tableaux of the Revolutionary period.

College life between the Revolution and the Civil War will be depicted by an old-fashioned football game, interrupted by firemen laying a hose across the ground; after which a free-for-all fight between students and town boys will follow.

Receipt of the news of the admission of Kansas as a slave state, the rapid recruiting of student volunteers, the funeral of Theodore Winthrop, the first man to fall on the Union side, are some of the incidents of the Civil War period.

Stationary actors forming friezes portraying college life since the Civil War, will compose panels, as the directors considered the events unsuited for pageantry. Through the historical scenes allegories will portray symbolically what Yale has stood for, what it now stands for, and what it will stand for to the state, to the nation and to the world.

The pageant will conclude with a grand finale, the retrospect of all that has gone before and the showing forth of what Yale is giving the world at present. Yale, the central figure, surrounded by the nine departments of the university, will come in drawn by white oxen with silver chains and accompanied by her most famous graduates with their inventions, discoveries and works that have been given to science and art. In the distance will be seen the groups that have made Yale's history and, at the close, Yale will be seen looking fearlessly to her future world of service while all the audience and performers join in singing the Yale song.

In addition to the great pageant the bi-centennial celebration is to include a program of commemorative exercises to be held in Woolsey hall Saturday morning. The meeting will be preceded by a combine academic and civic procession which will embrace the faculty, students and alumni of the university and official representatives of the State of Connecticut and the City of New Haven.

The exercises will be opened with prayer by Dean Charles R. Brown. Then will come the singing of the sixty-fifth psalm, the psalm which was sung on the day the college first opened in New Haven and which has formed a feature of the graduation day exercises during each year of the two centuries since 1718.

President Hadley is to deliver an introductory address at the commemorative exercises and Mayor Rice will speak in behalf of the city. The historical oration will be delivered by Prof. Weston Walker and the exercises will be brought to a close with a benediction by Bishop Brewster.

EXHIBITION OF FIRST AID AT THE DIMELING

All Interested in First Aid to the Injured Should Attend Meeting Tonight at 7.30

ADMISSION WILL BE FREE

An interesting first aid demonstration or exhibition will be given in the assembly hall at the Dimeling this evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, and to which everybody is invited and admission will be free.

The demonstration will be given under the combined auspices of the United States bureau of mines and the associated insurance companies and in addition to the practical work interesting talks will be given along the lines of first aid and mine safety by authorized experts such as William G. Duncan, senior inspector for the associated companies; R. L. Lander, A. M. Brown, J. T. Reynolds, C. A. Sine and E. H. McCleary, general inspectors and S. C. Reynolds, inspector for the Aetna insurance company.

The subject will be discussed both from the operators and miners standpoint as well as from the public policy standpoint, and everybody who can possibly do so should attend.

Similar demonstrations were held at Osceola on Tuesday evening and Phillipsburg last night. They were largely attended by mining men from all over those regions and much good should result from the knowledge gained.

EXPERT'S ADVICE FOR AUTO OWNERS

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance To the Man Who Runs a Car.

I have a small car, with the motor 3 1/2 by 4 1/2, in which the oiling system is splash and force feed, the oil being forced to the cam bearings, drops to troughs and the splash is supposed to take care of the rest of the motor. So much oil gets by the pistons into the combustion chamber that it smokes badly and will foul up the plugs in a fifty mile run so that they carbon right across the contact points. Could you advise me how to remedy my trouble?

All we can do with the meager information you have given us is to tell the possible causes of your trouble. If your motor has been overhauled since the day it came from the factory either the pistons and rings are a poor fit or there is a defect in the design of the oiling system. The scoops on the connecting rods may be too long or the oil level may be too high.

If, on the other hand, the excessive oiling seems to be the result of wear you will probably require new piston rings, or possibly it will be necessary to rebore the cylinders and fit slightly larger pistons. This will cost from $25 to $50, but the motor will then be almost as good as new.

We have assumed that you are using a good grade of oil, of the proper consistency—not too light. A heavier oil might help.

If you have difficulty in locating the trouble you should take the car to some factory service station. If there is none convenient, select the best repair shop. It may cost a little more per hour, but it will pay in the end.

My car runs well on a level road and when going up a hill on high, but when I reach the top and am running on the level it starts to miss and will not stop even though I put the spark lever at different positions. To stop the missing I have to stop the car and let the engine run until it starts regularly. What would you suggest?

Your trouble is in the carburetor. Probably the auxiliary air valve sticks open when the throttle is closed. By striking the car up a hill with the hood open and some one closely watching the carburetor it should not be hard to locate the defect.

I have a car with a multiple disk clutch, steel against steel. There are twenty-three disks about one-eighth inch thick. I have had several sets of new disks, etc., and had the best garage men in town at work on it, but they cannot fix it so that it will not leak oil. The disks wear out in a very short time. Could you give me some advice about this?

Evidently the trouble is not so much with the clutch itself as that the alignment is incorrect. It is impossible to state what causes this misalignment without going over the car, but it is very possible that it has been given some serious shock, which has thrown the drive out of line. Before any clutch can work satisfactorily the parts have to be lined up correctly, and therefore the garage men should be instructed before repairing the worn parts in the clutch to line up the parts so that the shaft from the gear box is perpendicular to the face of the fly wheel and, furthermore, that the center of the shaft is in line with the center of the crank shaft.

There is a clicking noise when my motor is running. It seems to be in the first or second cylinder. I would like to know the cause of it. Do you think

Frankly, there may be seventeen factors contributing at one time or another to "engine trouble." But it's always a safe bet that the greatest offender in the whole militaristic mob is Poor Lubrication. There's one sure way to banish lubrication-troubles: Atlantic Motor Oils.

Here are oils that have done as much toward banishing engine-trouble via better lubrication as Atlantic Gasoline, the accepted standard, has toward increasing power, mileage and general car-happyness.

Atlantic Polarine is commander of the crew of four principal motor oils, being the correct lubricant for eight out of ten cars. In all alternative cases, Atlantic "Light," Atlantic "Medium" or Atlantic "Heavy" is the one to use. Ask your garage-man which.

In actual tests, it has been definitely demonstrated that a properly lubricated motor will yield as much as two additional miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Use the combination: Atlantic Gasoline for fuel, Atlantic Motor Oils for lubrication.

The oldest and largest manufacturers of lubricating oils in the world recommend this combination to you without reservation. They ought to know whereof they speak—and they do.

Read up on this subject. We have published a handsome and comprehensive book about motor oils. It is free. Ask your garage man. If they won't supply you, drop us a postal and the book will be sent you without charge.

It is due to the valves being worn? The oil also seems to work out around the first and second cylinder push rods too freely, although the push rods do not seem worn. What can I do to remedy this?

Undoubtedly the clicking is caused by a valve part. The clearance between valve stem and push rod may be too great, or the push rod may be loose in the guide.

The valve guides and push rod guides are not removable, and the only simple remedy is to put in new push rods. The leakage of oil from the push rod guides is not worth considering.

Why are gasoline cars more popular than steam? Does the steam car not possess the qualities that manufacturers of gasoline cars are today working for—namely, the most power for the amount of expense and care required to maintain the same?

Necessity for maintaining a pilot flame to always have bent in the boiler and the more complicated system of control have militated against the extensive use of steam cars. Baskinly with steam there always remains the necessity for having some type of boiler outside the engine itself.

Should one disengage the clutch of a car before applying the service brake? I have a friend whose idea is to brake against compression, or, in other words, not to disengage the clutch first.

Braking with the clutch engaged means that the brakes must not only impede the momentum of the car, but of the engine and entire running gear as well. With the clutch disengaged the brakes have nothing to hold but the rear wheels, axles and drive as far as the gears. Furthermore, braking

What are the advantages of the single cast cylinder over two cast cylinders or vice versa? Are all shapes hard to keep in line?

The advantages and disadvantages of cylinder arrangements are largely concerned with economical construction. There is no difference in the actual quality of lining up the cylinders whether they are block cast or split cast.

What is the reason for offsetting the hub of the wire wheel? Is this done for looks only or is there a principle of angle levers that makes the operation more solid?

The reason for offsetting the hub of wire wheels is to permit the use of the standard tread in conjunction with a wide base for the spokes. If you imagine a section through the wheel and a pair of spokes forming a triangle with the width of the hub as the base and the rigidity of the wheel increased by increasing the width of the hub. If the spokes made equal angles with the hub on the same width of base or if the tire came central with tangent to the hub the tread of the car would be increased by fitting each wheel in place of the ordinary spoke.

Another reason for using wire wheels of the offset type is to bring the plane of the tire closer to the plane of the steering knuckle, so that even if special axles were designed for wire wheel cars there would still be an advantage in the use of the offset construction.

Norma Talmage In "GOING STRAIGHT"

The story of this thrilling Triangle 5 reel feature is as follows:

Jimmy Briggs, a crook, recognizes in John Remington, a respectable and prosperous real estate man, his former partner in crime, Higgins, who now is going straight. Remington's wife, Grace, used to be a member of the gang, too, but for the sake of their children, both have given up the old life of crime. Briggs blackmails Remington under threat of exposure of Grace as an accomplice in some bygone crimes, and eventually persuades Remington to join in one more robbery. The house selected for the stealing chances to be one where Grace is a guest for the week end; and she surprises Briggs in the act of taking some jewels. Remington, finding Briggs struggling with his wife, strikes him down; and in the consequent alarm, poses as rescuer of his wife from a daring burglar, Briggs. The outcome is rarely thrilling.

At the Opera House tomorrow evening.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD

Stewed meat requires less fuel to cook it than roasted, and is quite as nourishing.

A yolk of egg will keep fresh for several days if little cold water is poured over it.

The best way to wash lace is to squeeze it first in hot water, then in cold. To stiffen dip it in milk.

If you want cake to keep moist, place a perfectly sound apple in the cake tin. The apple should be renewed as soon as it shows any sign of withering.

Permanganate of potash is an excellent, cheap disinfectant. Dissolve an ounce in a quart of boiling water, and pour a little down every drain once a week if you want to keep the house sweet.

To soften a hard sponge cover with cold water, add a tablespoonful of borax, and bring slowly to the boil in a clean saucepan. Then remove the sponge, rub some dry borax into it, and rinse in cold water for several minutes.

When ironing blouses or frocks with large buttons on, try using several thicknesses of blanker or towels to iron them on. Turn the garment button-side down, and press on the wrong side. The buttons sink into the soft padding, leaving a smooth surface for the iron to run over.

A rubber sponge is an excellent instrument for dry cleaning woolen materials. The article to be cleaned should be laid upon a flat surface and rubbed briskly with the sponge, taking care always to rub the wrong side of the nap and to clean the sponge carefully after each rub.

Burnt saucepans should never be filled with soda-water, or they'll burn again; use salt and water instead, and leave until the next day, then bring slowly to the boil, when the burnt portion will come quite clean.

Place a week's tea-leaves in a pail, and pour over them a quart of boiling water. Leave for one hour, then strain and bottle. This liquor is excellent for cleaning varnished wood and linoleum, and when used for cleaning windows and mirrors makes them shine like crystal.

Teacups with broken handles are very useful for poaching eggs. Butter the inside, break the egg into the cup, and stand the cup in the frying pan half filled with water. It keeps the egg a good shape when poached, each to slip onto toast, and is cleaner than poaching in a frying pan.

The scorch-mark is one of the most difficult of all to deal with. Here is a good mixture for removing it. Boil together two ounces of soda, two ounces of fuller's earth, half a pint of vinegar, and a finely-chopped onion for ten minutes. Strain the mixture and when cold spread a little on the mark, and allow to dry. Then wash in the usual way.

Gold and silver lace and trimming soon get tarnished. Try cleaning this way: take a stale loaf and run the inside to make crumbs, and mix with a half pound of powdered blue. Lay this plentifully on the lace and rub gently until it becomes bright. Then take a piece of clean flannel and dust the crumbs well off. Finally rub the lace gently with a piece of velvet, and it will look as bright as when new.

"IT SAVED MY LIFE" DECLARED MRS. E. BENNETT

Pittsburgh Woman Now Attributes Her Recovering to Master Medicine

"This Tanlac has relieved me of that dreadful catarrh," said Mrs. Florence Bennett, residing at 429 Atwood street, Pittsburgh, Pa., recently "and I now feel like an entirely new woman."

"I had catarrh of the stomach and head. My head was all stopped up, feeling full and sore most of the time. I am certain that I swallowed the accumulations in my throat when I slept at night, as I never had any appetite for breakfast."

"I was in a terrible debilitated condition, too. It seemed that I had almost no blood circulation. I suffered intensely from headaches and my sleep never was sound and restful. I was nervous and languid and lacked energy. I positively declare that my housework had become a real drudgery."

"One day recently a friend said to me, 'Why don't you try this new Tanlac?' I know of persons it has helped and it may prove beneficial to you." I decided to try Tanlac and obtained a bottle of medicine. After taking a few doses I noticed much improvement in my condition.

"My head became clearer and I noticed that my catarrh was fast disappearing. My appetite became so ravenous that it was difficult to satisfy it. I began sleeping peacefully and my sleep was restful and beneficial. I have gained strength and weight rapidly. My headaches have gone, and the circulation of my blood is now normal."

"That languid listless, listless-the-time feeling has left me, and my housework has become a pleasure rather than a duty."

Tanlac is now sold in Clearfield exclusively by Woodward & McPherson where the premier preparation can be had.

OLD-TIME MINSTREL IN WANT

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 19.—Members of the theatrical profession and the older generation of playgoers who have laughed in their youth at the quips and jests of Hughey Dougherty will be asked to contribute to a fund to insure the old monarch of minstrelsy from want in his last years. Bent with age and broken health, the man who in his time was a top-liner among black face comedians arrived in Philadelphia recently, penniless and apparently without friends. Because of his mental condition he has now been confined in the Pennsylvania hospital for the insane.

As far back as the period immediately following the civil war and down to a comparatively recent date Hughey Dougherty has been a well known figure on the stage. For many years he was one of the most popular of "end men" with the big minstrel shows, appearing with Haverly, Dockstader, Primrose and West, and other of the leading minstrel organizations that flourished when such form of entertainment was at the zenith of its popularity. When the popularity of the minstrel shows began to wane Dougherty took to the vaudeville stage. As a monologue artist he had few peers in his day. Now he has been overtaken by old age and broken health and the stage will know him no more. An effort is to be made to raise sufficient funds to place him in a home where he will be well cared for in his declining years.

Small Attendance at Meeting of Borough Council Last Night

Numerous Reports Heard and Many Business Matters Discussed By Those Who Were Present

WILL MOUNT CANNON IN WITMER PARK

Seven of the twelve members were present at last night's meeting of the Borough Council at the borough building. President James F. Pietcher of the First Ward presided.

There was very little done except the transacting of the routine business of council, which consisted largely of reports from the different borough officials.

Street Commissioner Graham reported on the general borough work being done, and his report showed a great deal of activity on the part of the street forces getting the streets alleys and sewers in shape for winter.

Engineer Hess reported on matters concerning sidewalk grades in different parts of the borough and stated that curbs were being built over Orr's run near Walther's livery stable. He also reported the Daisy street having been finished and the street opened, and that the laying of brick had been started on Nichols street and that concrete base on said street would be completed by Turnpike avenue by Saturday night, weather permitting. He also stated that the curves at Turnpike avenue would be made of longer radius in order to better accommodate the traffic at this point, and thus relieve a dangerous situation.

Secretary McCullough of the board of health reported a most satisfactory condition of public health, his report stating that at the present time there were only three premises in the borough under quarantine, one for the whooping cough and two diphtheria, and that during the first sixteen of the last thirty days there was not a single case of contagious disease in the borough.

W. H. Patterson, Esq., president of the Shade Tree commission, was present and informed council that when the present borough code was passed by the last legislature that the law under which the Shade Tree commission was appointed and was acting had been repealed and if council wished to continue the commission it would be necessary to pass a resolution covering same as provided for in the code and the burgess would then have to make new appointments. The matter was referred to the borough solicitor for investigation and to report form of resolution.

Solicitor Urey reported that progress toward purchase of the water works was being retarded by failure of the superintendent to produce map of the plant which was necessary to his application to the Public Service Commission.

The borough engineer was directed to make plan and specifications for mounting the two cannon presented to the borough by the late Hon. James Kerr some years ago, it being the intention of the school board to have same placed at the edge of Wit-

mer park near the High School lot line.

That never ending garbage incinerator proposition was up again and got itself almost talked to death once more. It was the opinion of the majority of council that the incinerator should be built on the site of the present dump, that being the only location available. There seemed to be a difference of opinion as to what constituted garbage and what was rubbish and the nature of plant needed here and Chairman Pietcher appointed Messrs Wilson and Hagerly, Borough Solicitor Urey and Borough Engineer Hess a special committee to go into the matter and report some form of garbage disposal for Clearfield at the next meeting of council.

Mr. Hagerly, of finance committee reported the issuing on October 8th of an additional $5,000 worth of 1916 improvement bonds.

Generals Listen to Pleadings of Girl

Allow "Rover" Favorite Dog to be Sent to Soldier Brother

Washington, October 19. —Ponderous governmental machinery stood still today while a thirteen year old girl stood before a group of dignified generals and tearfully pleaded for the life of a little yellow dog.

She was Esther Smiley of Maryland, sister of Private Peter Smiley, a recruit in the United States Marine Corps, and the dog she held in her arms had been Peter's playmate since youth.

"Rover will surely die of grief unless you send him on to my brother," the little girl sobbed.

And wonder of wonders, the dignified generals understood the little girl's plea, and acting instantly to percolate the embalming of Rover in the red tape of officialdom gave the necessary instructions, and within an hour the faithful playmate of Private Peter Smiley was created up ready for shipment to the Marine Corps recruit depot, Port Royal, S. C., where Peter is in training for the land and sea duties of marine.

A Sight London Never Saw Before

This photograph of soldiers whose legs were shot off in the war was taken in London. In time they will be given mechanical legs and will abandon their crutches. The British surgeons have followed the general policy of cutting off limbs which seemed to them could not be saved. In France a much different method has been pursued. There every effort has been made to preserve limbs of wounded soldiers.

OFFICER SWEARS LIVES OF DOGS INTO GRAVE

GIVEN CHANCE TO MAKE GOOD

Under an Act of Assembly passed at the last session of the legislature the constables of the commonwealth were designated as the official executioners of every dog within the confines of their bailiwick upon which no taxes had been paid for the coming year. The purpose of the act was to rid the state of the hundreds of worthless curs running at large. The law was put through by the farmers and state game commission to get away from the damage to sheep and game perpetrated by these vagabond canines.

The law has been working out quite satisfactorily in Clearfield county and many dogs have been put to death in the different districts. The constable is entitled under the law to receive one dollar a head for each dog killed and it has been a source of considerable revenue to a number of active officials. However, the county commissioners, who pay the bills, conceived the idea that they were being called upon to pay for more dogs than were actually being killed and when several bills with an especially large number of dog funerals listed were received the other day they decided to make an investigation of several of the bills, after paying them on the oath of the constable presenting same.

Accordingly District Attorney Welch was taken in on the play and the matter turned over to County Detective Jeffries. He was given the bill of a Constable from the upper end of the county which stated that during last month twenty-one dogs had been killed and for which the constable had been paid twenty-one good hard dollars.

Jeffries went promptly to work and after going over the list and interviewing the people listed by the constable as the owners of the dogs killed he found that instead of there having been twenty-one dogs slaughtered at one dollar per head there had really been but one dog killed for which the constable had been paid twenty-one dollars.

The constable was given an opportunity to call and refund the money to the commissioners, which he will do tomorrow, and if further procedure after that time will be up to the commissioners and their attorney. The county detective is endeavoring several other cases of this kind, and trouble may come to the constables before the affair is closed up.

92 Years Average Age Of County Family

Dressler Family of Union Township Has a Wonderful Record

Yesterday dispatches to a Philadelphia paper refer to the remarkable fact that a Franklin county lady is today celebrating her ninety-seventh birthday anniversary and that there are of her brothers and sisters six whose average age is 85 years.

Clearfield county can produce a record that is just a trifle better. There was raised in the Union township woods the well known Dressler family.

"Uncle Levi Dressler," as he is familiarly known, is now 87 years of age and he is the youngest survivor of the family. The eldest of the family, John Dressler, was born in 1724 and died in 1814. He was 92 years of age when he died. He had three sons, George, John, and James. George lived to the age of 92, John to 90, and James to 88. The average age of the family is 85 years.

JEFFRIES GETS ELOPERS AFTER LONG CHASE

WILL STICK TO AFFINITY

County Detective Hugh Jeffries arrived in town last evening on the 10.15 Pennsylvania train having in charge Emilio Tolomei, the young Curwensville Italian who eloped last week with Mrs. Edward Durandetto. Mrs. Durandetto and her two-year-old baby were also in the party and the guilty pair are now behind the bars at Fort McKelvey. They will be called upon Monday morning to face Judge Bell and the angry frowns of the injured husband, whom it is said is willing to let Tolomei have the woman providing they turn his child over to him.

The county detective was given the case four days after the elopers left Curwensville. He picked up their trail at Tyrone and followed them from there to Tamqua, and from thence to Bloomsburg, Columbia county, where he arrested Tolomei yesterday morning just after he had secured a job in a brick yard, had rented a house and was preparing to go to housekeeping.

Tolomei did not know what he was arrested for and readily took the detective to the house where his mammoth was stopping. Leaving the gray Italian (who is as homely as a mud fence) outside in the custody of an officer, Mr. Jeffries went into the house and arrested the woman. She denied being the party wanted and said she had been married at Clearfield October 10th. When confronted with her lover she acknowledged the man.

Mrs. Durandetto is a prepossessing woman and says she will stick to her affinity regardless of what her lawful husband has to say in the matter.

OIL STRIKERS GOING BACK.

Evonne, Oct. 19. —(By United Press)—More than 1000 strike employees of the Standard Oil company are expected to return to their work at the plant here today. Superintendent H. C. of the Standard Oil company was at the plant and reported the men when he saw the number of men outside. He declared that there is a sufficient number to run the plant. The strike has been a success in that more men are returning to work. The return of the men will be a relief to the company.

WHAT NOTHING IS

If any man thinks that he can conceive well enough how there should be nothing, I will e gaze that what he means by nothing is as much something as anything that he ever thought of in his life, and I believe that if he knew what nothing was it would be intuitively, evident to him that it could not be. Absolute nothing is the aggregate of all the contradictions in the world.—Jonathan Edwards

German Submarine Reported Sunk Thoaght To Be the Raider U-53

Norfolk Va., Oct. 19.—(By United Press)—A German submarine possibly the U-53 has been sunk off Nantucket, a message according to the British vessel North Pacific claims to have received. The North Pacific is taking on coal bunkers here today. Although it arrived Monday night from Seattle, the North Pacific reported only today that it had received the message from a British cruiser. The message was received by wireless and read "German submarine sunk off Nantucket." Officers of the North Pacific verified the statement given out by the United Press a few days ago that the insurance rates on Trans Atlantic shipping had been lowered and that Lloyd's had received some inside in-

Farmington, W. Va., Oct. 19.—(By United Press)—Flash—A terrible mine disaster has occurred at Barackville, three miles from here. Early reports are that 100 are entombed.

Miners employed by the Jamison Coal Mining company at Barackville three miles from here were entrapped by an explosion of fire damp at one o'clock this afternoon and several lives have been lost. After the explosion officials of the company denied the statement that more than 100 men were entombed. The mine they said had not been operating with its normal force since Tuesday and as it was at the end of the dinner hour but four had returned to their work in the mines. Telephone calls from Barackville stated that practically a score of lives had been lost.

Officials connected with the Mine Rescue car that is now in this vicinity advise us that the explosion at the Jamison Colliery was no doubt caused by an explosive gas known in the parlance of the chemist as C H 4 or carburetted hydrogen which when mixed with air in the proportion of 1 of gas to 9.78 of air is most explosive. The explosion is followed with black damp or C O 2 which gas simply smothers a man due to an entire lack of oxygen. From this smothering a man can be resuscitated either by manual work or pulmotor. In case the explosion of C H 4 is not complete and only partly explodes the most deadly gas forms. This gas is known as Carbon Monoxide or C O and is an active poison which if breathed for any length of time is fatal. One half of one per cent of this poison is fatal.

The mine that exploded is Jamison No. 7 and is one of the seven mines owned by the Jamison Company of Greensburg. While officials admit that at least a score have been killed it is safe to predict that the total number who will smother from the suffocating gases and who will be killed outright will be much greater. At this time however it cannot be learned how many of those still in the mine are still alive.

This explosion will no doubt be a subject for discussion at the First Aid meet at the Dimeling tonight and it will be very interesting to everybody.

Bulgars and Serbs Battle Fiercely Feeling Against French in Greece

London, Oct. 19. —(By United Press)—Serbian fighting forces are nearing Monastir and battles are taking place daily between the Bulgars and the Serbs, official dispatches today announce. The Serbs are entailing heavy losses on the enemy. A great number of allied troops are arriving on the Somme and Italian fronts under General Foulk. Austria reports the loss of 40,000 since the resumption of the heavy fighting. Serbian losses were also big. The situation in Greece was more calm today, but the crisis is not past. Greek forces are in control for the moment. Attacks on French marines have been threatened but no violence has been done. Anti-allied leaders are doing their best to rally the populace against the French troops. The Greek cabinet met today and it is reported are drafting a protest to the allies against the arrest of Greek members of the reservist league by French marines last night. A crowd of the reservist league hissed a patrol of marines at the point of bayonettes. Greek troops witnessed the arrest but did not interfere. The cabinet met to discuss the Irish situation but it was certain in view of Lloyd George's statement in Commons yesterday that no attempt would be made to impose conscription in Ireland. The Daily News said that it was possible the Cabinet would draft a conciliatory measure for presentation to the Irish leaders.

RAINY DAYS.

A rainy day is not the pleasantest occasion in the world yet they play their part in the complex machinations of this terrestrial globe and have a great effect on the inhabitants thereof. From the chronic rheumatic who tells you the day after the rain that he knew it was coming three days before by the feel of his bones, to the frog that persists in keeping you awake at night in the springtime by his gurgling "jug o' rum," all manner of living things on terra firma are affected. Just at this time rain is sorely needed to keep the earth from cracking. There is absolutely no water in the ground and the farmer has been praying for it for weeks. There is a scarcity of water in several towns and to these the rain will be a Godsend.

Business men usually frown on a rainy day, forgetting that a rainy day has both an immediate and future effect on business and manufacturing. A woman scanning an advertisement in the paper today or thinking of a new suit, a new coat or dress, will be all the more anxious to buy one from the fact that she cannot get out to do it today on account of the rain. It is a well known fact that we most want that which is just a little out of reach. Then again, a rainy day opens up rain coat sales, over coats, rubbers and a myriad of other articles. 76,000 people are engaged in the making of umbrellas in the U. S. What would they do without rainy days? What ruins your clothes more than a rainy day? Doesn't this make it necessary to buy? The business man should welcome a rainy day. It creates industry, manufacturing and buying.

Don't the kiddies like rain? Sure they do. Once in a while one may get wet feet and contract pneumonia but where one suffers, think of the thousands of dirty little urchins out on the dirt roads in their bare feet happy in the sensation of letting the nice, smeary mud ooze up between their toes. Those were the days when rain was welcome and we enjoyed life unfettered by conventions.

When it rains we look gloomy, especially if it happens to be Dollar Day, but after a rain we greet everybody with a smile and a cheery "Nice day after the rain." Let the rain come. Be thankful for it. It is one of God's blessings.

HOSPITALITY AS AN IDEAL.

Perhaps the greatest charm of the southern states to the traveler is hospitality. Nobody ever turns away from a southern homestead hungry and tired. Southern doors are always open and so are southern hearts.

In the rush of our busy life up in the North we are inclined to forget hospitality now and then. So much must be accomplished in such a short time that there is little opportunity for entertaining friends in the average person's life.

My friend Ethel, of whom I speak so very often, was born in Virginia. Of course all my charms are glad to see me and make me at home, but at Ethel's little homestead there is, somehow or other, that underlying strain of welcome. When you are there your thoughts must fly to the old Southern mansions where civility was always in full swing and where the traveler was sure of refreshment and shelter.

After all, dear girls, what is the use of having a lovely little home if we can not share it with others occasionally?

A home is a woman's kingdom and if she lacks hospitality we are unable to speak well of the way in which she reigns over it.

Even though the wealthy entertain lavishly with their week ends, dinners, parties, and dances, we are seldom able to think of them as really hospitable people. The size and quality of the house has absolutely nothing to do with the matter. Hospitality is a habit to do with the matter. Hospitality is a habit.

may be found in the humblest of humble homes. In fact it is more generally discovered at the less wealthy hearthstone.

If I desire to be considered hospitable, and now that I have my own little home, it can be made possible. Why can't we, one and all, join hands across the different states and make all women, North and South, renowned for their hospitality?

NEGRO MURDERER TO HANG

Gainesville, Fla., Oct. 19.—Preparations have been completed by the county sheriff for the execution of the negro murderer, Willie Turner, who took place at an early hour tomorrow morning. The crime for which Turner is to pay the death penalty was the murder of E. C. Avery, a veteran turfman, on the Alachua county fair grounds here last November. After committing the crime the negro buried the body of his victim in a stall.

STORMS APPROACHING NORTH EAST

Pitts., Wash., Oct. 19.—The weather bureau posted storm notices today that storms were approaching from the Great Lakes and along the Atlantic coast. The storm center is now able to think of them as really hospitable people. The size and quality of the house has absolutely nothing to do with the matter. Hospitality is a habit to do with the matter. Hospitality is a habit.

CLEARFIELD NATIONAL BANK

Historic Yale University Celebrates Her Two Hundredth Anniversary

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 19.—Two hundred years! All that the rounding out of two centuries of progress and development, of building and expansion, of goals gained and ambitions realized, of work performed and projects completed, of ideals attained and problems solved, of things done means to a great educational institution is what Yale University is to celebrate at the end of this week.

The celebration is to take place Saturday, two centuries to a day from the time that the little group of divines, who formed the Yale faculty, cranning Greek and Latin roots into a dozen youthful heads, decided that they could make a better job of it in New Haven than they had made in Saybrook, where the infant college had been located since its foundation fifteen years before. They decided to move to New Haven and, in commemoration of the removal, the celebration is to be held. It was an event that affected both Yale and New Haven the most profoundly in character, ideals and progress of anything in the entire history of both the city and the college.

The principal feature of the celebration is to be a mammoth pageant depicting historical scenes connected with the university. The pageant is to be given in the great Yale "bowls". The completed plans show that it will be the largest in number of actors ever gathered in the history of the drama in any play or pageant. Six thousand actors will be on the stage at the same time.

The great drama will start with a prelude showing the wedding procession of Margaret, grandmother of John Yale, who received her dowry, the reversion of Playen Yale. From this inheritance two centuries later his descendant, Elihu Yale, made the name forever famous by bestowing it on a small "collegiate school" in Connecticut.

Then will come a series of historical scenes, including the Governor's Pool Guard, under Benedict Arnold, demanding the keys of the powder house in 1775, the invasion of New Haven by British troops in 1779, the martyrdom of Nathaniel Hale, the visit of George Washington to New Haven, all grouped under tableaux of the Revolutionary period.

College life between the Revolution and the Civil War will be depicted by an old-fashioned football game, interrupted by firemen laying a hose across the ground; after which a free-for-all fight between students and town boys will follow.

Receipt of the news of the admission of Kansas as a slave state, the rapid recruiting of student volunteers, the funeral of Theodore Winthrop, the first man to fall on the Union side, are some of the incidents of the Civil War period.

Stationary actors forming friezes portraying college life since the Civil War, will compose panels, as the directors considered the events unsuited for pageantry. Through the historical scenes allegories will portray symbolically what Yale has stood for, what it now stands for, and what it will stand for to the state, to the nation and to the world.

The pageant will conclude with a grand finale, the retrospect of all that has gone before and the showing forth of what Yale is giving the world at present. Yale, the central figure, surrounded by the nine departments of the university, will come in drawn by white oxen with silver chains and accompanied by her most famous graduates with their inventions, discoveries and works that have been given to science and art. In the distance will be seen the groups that have made Yale's history and, at the close, Yale will be seen looking fearlessly to her future world of service while all the audience and performers join in singing the Yale song.

In addition to the great pageant the bi-centennial celebration is to include a program of commemorative exercises to be held in Woolsey hall Saturday morning. The meeting will be preceded by a combine academic and civic procession which will embrace the faculty, students and alumni of the university and official representatives of the State of Connecticut and the City of New Haven.

The exercises will be opened with prayer by Dean Charles R. Brown. Then will come the singing of the sixty-fifth psalm, the psalm which was sung on the day the college first opened in New Haven and which has formed a feature of the graduation day exercises during each year of the two centuries since 1718.

President Hadley is to deliver an introductory address at the commemorative exercises and Mayor Rice will speak in behalf of the city. The historical oration will be delivered by Prof. Weston Walker and the exercises will be brought to a close with a benediction by Bishop Brewster.

EXHIBITION OF FIRST AID AT THE DIMELING

All Interested in First Aid to the Injured Should Attend Meeting Tonight at 7.30

ADMISSION WILL BE FREE

An interesting first aid demonstration or exhibition will be given in the assembly hall at the Dimeling this evening, beginning at 7.30 o'clock, and to which everybody is invited and admission will be free.

The demonstration will be given under the combined auspices of the United States bureau of mines and the associated insurance companies and in addition to the practical work interesting talks will be given along the lines of first aid and mine safety by authorized experts such as William G. Duncan, senior inspector for the associated companies; R. L. Lander, A. M. Brown, J. T. Reynolds, C. A. Sine and E. H. McCleary, general inspectors and S. C. Reynolds, inspector for the Aetna insurance company.

The subject will be discussed both from the operators and miners standpoint as well as from the public policy standpoint, and everybody who can possibly do so should attend.

Similar demonstrations were held at Osceola on Tuesday evening and Phillipsburg last night. They were largely attended by mining men from all over those regions and much good should result from the knowledge gained.

EXPERT'S ADVICE FOR AUTO OWNERS

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance To the Man Who Runs a Car.

I have a small car, with the motor 3 1/2 by 4 1/2, in which the oiling system is splash and force feed, the oil being forced to the cam bearings, drops to troughs and the splash is supposed to take care of the rest of the motor. So much oil gets by the pistons into the combustion chamber that it smokes badly and will foul up the plugs in a fifty mile run so that they carbon right across the contact points. Could you advise me how to remedy my trouble?

All we can do with the meager information you have given us is to tell the possible causes of your trouble. If your motor has been overhauled since the day it came from the factory either the pistons and rings are a poor fit or there is a defect in the design of the oiling system. The scoops on the connecting rods may be too long or the oil level may be too high.

If, on the other hand, the excessive oiling seems to be the result of wear you will probably require new piston rings, or possibly it will be necessary to rebore the cylinders and fit slightly larger pistons. This will cost from $25 to $50, but the motor will then be almost as good as new.

We have assumed that you are using a good grade of oil, of the proper consistency—not too light. A heavier oil might help.

If you have difficulty in locating the trouble you should take the car to some factory service station. If there is none convenient, select the best repair shop. It may cost a little more per hour, but it will pay in the end.

My car runs well on a level road and when going up a hill on high, but when I reach the top and am running on the level it starts to miss and will not stop even though I put the spark lever at different positions. To stop the missing I have to stop the car and let the engine run until it starts regularly. What would you suggest?

Your trouble is in the carburetor. Probably the auxiliary air valve sticks open when the throttle is closed. By striking the car up a hill with the hood open and some one closely watching the carburetor it should not be hard to locate the defect.

I have a car with a multiple disk clutch, steel against steel. There are twenty-three disks about one-eighth inch thick. I have had several sets of new disks, etc., and had the best garage men in town at work on it, but they cannot fix it so that it will not leak oil. The disks wear out in a very short time. Could you give me some advice about this?

Evidently the trouble is not so much with the clutch itself as that the alignment is incorrect. It is impossible to state what causes this misalignment without going over the car, but it is very possible that it has been given some serious shock, which has thrown the drive out of line. Before any clutch can work satisfactorily the parts have to be lined up correctly, and therefore the garage men should be instructed before repairing the worn parts in the clutch to line up the parts so that the shaft from the gear box is perpendicular to the face of the fly wheel and, furthermore, that the center of the shaft is in line with the center of the crank shaft.

There is a clicking noise when my motor is running. It seems to be in the first or second cylinder. I would like to know the cause of it. Do you think

Frankly, there may be seventeen factors contributing at one time or another to "engine trouble." But it's always a safe bet that the greatest offender in the whole militaristic mob is Poor Lubrication. There's one sure way to banish lubrication-troubles: Atlantic Motor Oils.

Here are oils that have done as much toward banishing engine-trouble via better lubrication as Atlantic Gasoline, the accepted standard, has toward increasing power, mileage and general car-happyness.

Atlantic Polarine is commander of the crew of four principal motor oils, being the correct lubricant for eight out of ten cars. In all alternative cases, Atlantic "Light," Atlantic "Medium" or Atlantic "Heavy" is the one to use. Ask your garage-man which.

In actual tests, it has been definitely demonstrated that a properly lubricated motor will yield as much as two additional miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Use the combination: Atlantic Gasoline for fuel, Atlantic Motor Oils for lubrication.

The oldest and largest manufacturers of lubricating oils in the world recommend this combination to you without reservation. They ought to know whereof they speak—and they do.

Read up on this subject. We have published a handsome and comprehensive book about motor oils. It is free. Ask your garage man for it. If they won't supply you, drop us a postal and the book will be sent you without charge.

It is due to the valves being worn? The oil also seems to work out around the first and second cylinder push rods too freely, although the push rods do not seem worn. What can I do to remedy this?

Undoubtedly the clicking is caused by a valve part. The clearance between valve stem and push rod may be too great, or the push rod may be loose in the guide.

The valve guides and push rod guides are not removable, and the only simple remedy is to put in new push rods. The leakage of oil from the push rod guides is not worth considering.

Why are gasoline cars more popular than steam? Does the steam car not possess the qualities that manufacturers of gasoline cars are today working for—namely, the most power for the amount of expense and care required to maintain the same?

Necessity for maintaining a pilot flame to always have bent in the boiler and the more complicated system of control have militated against the extensive use of steam cars. Baskinly with steam there always remains the necessity for having some type of boiler outside the engine itself.

Should one disengage the clutch of a car before applying the service brake? I have a friend whose idea is to brake against compression, or, in other words, not to disengage the clutch first.

Braking with the clutch engaged means that the brakes must not only impede the momentum of the car, but of the engine and entire running gear as well. With the clutch disengaged the brakes have nothing to hold but the rear wheels, axles and drive as far as the gears. Furthermore, braking

What are the advantages of the single cast cylinder over two cast cylinders or vice versa? The oil seems hard to keep in line?

The advantages and disadvantages of cylinder arrangements are largely concerned with economical construction. There is no difference in the actual quality of lining up the cylinders whether they are block cast or split cast.

What is the reason for offsetting the hub of the wire wheel? Is this done for looks only or is there a principle of angle levers that would make the operation more solid?

The reason for offsetting the hub of wire wheels is to permit the use of the standard tread in conjunction with a wide base for the spokes. If you imagine a section through the wheel and pair of spokes forms a triangle with the width of the hub as the base and the rigidity of the wheel increased by increasing the width of the hub. If the spokes made equal angles with the hub on the same width of base or if the tire came central with tangent to the hub the tread of the car would be increased by fitting such wheels in place of the ordinary type.

Another reason for using wire wheels of the offset type is to bring the plane of the tire closer to the plane of the steering knuckle, so that even if special axles were designed for wire wheel cars there would still be an advantage in the use of the offset construction.
